In case you haven't noticed, there is no such thing as the "paperless office"! Computer printers come in all sizes and speeds and are important parts of every business. When we founded The Computing Center was founded in 1978, one of the first products we sold and serviced were printers. We still do today.

After many years, our primary printer technician has decided to leave The Computing Center to pursue another position. To replace him, we now have two certified printer technicians available for both warranty and non-warranty service. We'll be announcing our newest printer and computer service technician who is joining The Computing Center shortly. He has decades of experience with Hewlett Packard, Xerox, Dell and other printer systems. And Tom Santspree, who you may have met in his printer consultants role, will also now be assigned to as needed to provide repair services.

Printers have changed a lot since 1978. We were there in 1984 when Hewlett Packard developed the original Laserjet. Today, there are a myriad of devices available to fit virtually every printing need. Printing is an important part of our business:

- We locally stock and deliver computer printer consumables throughout our service area every day. And we deliver free too.
- Cornell University has recognized us with a "Top Performer Supplier Award" every year since 2013, specifically for our printer supply program.
- We are certified to provide warranty and non-warranty service on HP, Xerox, Dell, and other computer printers and Multi-Function Printer (MFP) devices.
- We've recently added a fully managed printer program where we supply everything you need to print except the paper! Our prices for these services are competitive with any other supplier and our monitoring and automated consumables delivery is consistent and second to none.
